

The New York Times

5 New Hotels for One Last Sun-Drenched Getaway

From Cape Cod to Croatia, here's where to enjoy the end of the summer.

By Stephanie Rosenbloom

Aug. 27, 2026, 5:03 a.m. ET

It's the last call for summer — a chance for one more sun-drenched vacation, perhaps with fewer crowds and (if you're lucky) cooler weather. Here are five new properties where you can make the most of the passing season, including a boutique hotel in Cape Cod, a glamping retreat in New Hampshire's White Mountains region and an adults-only escape on Turkey's Aegean coast.

DALTON, N.H.

Under Canvas White Mountains

The 45-tent glamping getaway Under Canvas White Mountains in New Hampshire is a convenient base from which to tackle hiking and biking trails in the surrounding area, including White Mountain National Forest. Under Canvas White Mountains

This new 45-tent glamping getaway is set on 86 acres amid meadows and forests, with views of the soaring Presidential Range. It's a convenient base from which to tackle hiking and biking trails through the White Mountain National Forest and explore the Connecticut River. You're also about a half-hour drive to Franconia Notch State Park with its Flume Gorge, and to the Mount Washington Cog Railway, which has been climbing to the summit since the 19th century. When you prefer to stay on the property, the hotel has a yoga deck, more than 20 miles of trails connecting the property to Dalton Mountain, and board and lawn games.

When it comes to the tents, there's no one-size-fits-all. Choose from "deluxe" tents with king-size beds, wood-burning stoves, bathrooms and decks. "Suite" tents have those features, plus a lounge area with a queen-size sofa bed. Opt for a "Stargazer" tent, if you'd like to look up at the sky as you drift off to sleep, with a window above the bed. There are also setups for families and groups. There is E.V. charging, but Wi-Fi is intentionally not offered.

Breakfast and dinner can be had on-site at Embers, which serves salads, charcuterie, fish, local wines, ciders and beers. (Grab-'n-go snacks and lunches are also available.) End the day under the stars beside a fire pit. The s'mores are free. Prices from $251 a night. The camp is open through Oct. 11.